

400,000 people marched in the streets of New York on Sunday to protest against climate change. As an actor, he pretends to be an expert on climate change, but he is a concerned citizen who wants to solve the problem himself.